Does Her Best to Solve Problem of High Cost of Living.

From the Christian Herald.

The lost egg-more plainly, the band egg-costs the family circle of the United States over $85.00.00 annually. This loss in by me means the fault of Biddy, the hen, who does her thrifty part to solve the "high cost of Biving." Issing yearly over $85.00.00 worth of eggs. Not a bad one does she last. How then, do we, her bedochdarles, manage to deposit our effect of two in every twelve of lost. Biddy's product is kept by the farmer a week or two more before it gets to the country store, where it abides another several weeks before shipment to the city commission merchant. From the retailer, in due or undue season, Biddy's eggs reach, the consumer's partry or tenbox, and thence appear by relaxs on his table. Now, here is a problem of delays which Biddy cannot solve, and it is up to us, mere mortals, to do it. Everythedy can help a little, and everybody who helps a little is doing a public service—helping to feed our big family.

No less an agent than the government of the United States neeks to sustain Biddy's effort to feed us, and to coperate with the farmer in getting fresh eggs to market.
